1. (Kelly & C.P. ?)
2. Peter Webley from the Reserach Advisory Committee asked th FDAI Committee for some input/ feedback regarding a Frequently Asked Questions document (still an unofficial draft!) that they put together, as they felt that new arriving faculty and even those who are becoming faculty from post-doctoral or reserach associates would find this information useful and informative for grants as well as after the award has been granted. Please read the attachment in advance of our next meeting, so we can discuss this on Tuesday.
3. Former FDAI committee member Dana Greci asked me to forward this link to the members of FDAI. Maybe, it is something of interest to the committee. It is a tool for measuring critical thinking skills which is intentionally designed so that it can be used for faculty development as well. The Critical Thinking Assessment Test (CAT) is a tool created by Tennessee Tech. Information about the CAT can be found at: <http://www.tntech.edu/cat/home/>.
